

Deep Diving into Foundation Subjects

Speaker	Chris Quigley
Date	3rd March 2021
Delivery	ONLINE, VIA ZOOM
Time	9.30 am - 3.00 pm

Course Outline:

For many years, curriculum design in primary schools has focused on making content real, relevant, engaging and fun. Whilst there is nothing wrong with any of these things there has been a huge shift towards one of the biggest problems with learning: unless something is remembered in the long term it hasn't been learned; it has been experienced, and just because the curriculum is real, relevant, engaging or fun doesn't mean that it will be learned.

It is this thinking that underpins Ofsted's deep dives into curriculum design. This course will help you to articulate how your curriculum is designed for longterm memory.

- Explore every aspect of curriculum design through 14 questions and example answers
- Learn about the latest research evidence around effective curriculum design
- Confidently answer questions about curriculum principles, sequencing and progression
- Questions for senior leaders, curriculum leaders, class teachers and students mean that you look at your curriculum from all angles.

Throughout the day Chris asks 14 questions and gives example answers, enabling you to carry out a full-scale review of your curriculum as well as unique ways to present your answers.
